Have you heard of maia?

Sure, Maia was the eldest daughter of the Greek god Atlas. The Ancient Romans regarded her as the goddess of growth. So it should come as no surprise that the Maia system was created to power students’ growth into capable, productive, life-long learners, regardless of the path they take. Maia is the easiest-to-use, most affordable and most effective K-12 student engagement platform for college and career readiness. It addresses these district challenges:

1. We are failing to engage many of our students to seek their passion and follow it through college and career, particularly those students not in the top income quartile. Students who do go to college without researching broadly often choose institutions where they are less likely to earn degrees.

2. Most counselors have large caseloads and spend too much time on administrative issues and immediate crises. College and career planning is sacrificed. Most districts have good college counselors, and they usually have other programs to help manage student information, college choices, applications, recommendations, etc., yet the current counseling management model is not working for all students.

Name change

Just in case you hadn't heard, upon the well-earned retirements of three of our founding partners, the law firm of "Ferrara, Fiorenza, Larrison, Barrett & Reitz, P.C." recently changed its name to "Ferrara Fiorenza PC." Although our name is different, the firm's attorneys, staff and management structure remain unchanged.

And, of course, our 24 attorneys continue to provide strategic counsel and exceptional service and representation to the firm's school district and BOCES clients throughout Upstate New York on the wide range of legal issues and challenges facing public schools today.

Our Chairman, Ben Ferrara, also recently led our celebration of our 21st anniversary since the founding of the firm.
